

FIELD MARSHAL HAIG BEGINS NEW OFFENSIVE ON EXTENDED FRONT TO THE EAST OF YPRESOfficial Statement Reports That Satisfactory Progress Has Been Made.

AMERICAN AVIATOR KILLED

Andrew Courtney Campbell, Member of the Lafayette Escadrille, Believed to Have Been Brought Down in Combat With Several Germans.By Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 4.—Field Marshal Haig has begun a new offensive east of Ypres.The official statement from British headquarters in France today says the British attacked at 6 o'clock this morning on a wide front and are making satisfactory progress.A number of prisoners already have been taken.HEADQUARTERS OF LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE, Oct. 1. (Delayed).— Sergeant Andrew Courtney Campbell, Jr., of the Lafayette Escadrille, is believed to have been brought down today in a fight with several German machines. No details have been received and it is not known whether he was killed or forced to land in German territory.A French lieutenant, a member of another escadrille, reports having seen a machine of the type Campbell was flying falling down, out of control.This is confirmed by infantrymen in the front line trenches.Courtney, whose home is in Kent-worth, Ill., was recently reported in news dispatches, as having been awarded the French war cross.GERMAN TOWNS AGAIN BOMBED BY THE FRENCHPARIS, Oct. 4.—Another aerial raid over Germany was made last night by French aviators. The cities of Frankfurt and Barmen were bombed.
The following official announcement was given out:"In reprisal for the bombardment of Bar-le-Duc, our aviators bombarded Frankfurt and Barmen."Barmen is a town of 14,000, in Baden, 14 miles southwest of Karlsruhe.
This is the second attack on Frankfurt in the last week, since the French inaugurated their policy of reprisal raids.AMERICAN SCHOONER IS ATTACKED BY SUBMARINELONDON, Oct. 4.—The American schooner Annie F. Conlon was attacked by gunfire by a German submarine Wednesday morning off the Scilly islands. The crew of eight men has been landed safely.HAIG PENETRATES LINE OF GERMAN LINEBRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 4.—Field Marshal Haig's forces in the offensive begun to the east of Ypres this morning in some places have penetrated the German line to the depth of one mile and have overrun the crest of the Pass-chendaele-Gheluvelt ridge.At an early hour the Germans were surrendering by hundreds.HAIG BEGINS ANOTHER TERRIFIC DRIVE IN WESTStriking again on a wide front east of Ypres, the British this morning began another drive at the German line in Flanders. Field Marshal Haig in his early report announced that satisfactory progress was being made.
Already a stream of prisoners is being sent to the rear. A renewal of the drive comes after an eight day interval. On Wednesday of last week, the British swept forward over ground on both sides of the Ypres-Menin road, advancing from a half mile to a mile at various points along the line.With today's renewal of the drive the battle of Flanders is growing more and more to resemble last year's battle of the Somme, which was followed by the memorable Hindenburg retreat.The same general tactics now being pursued of persistent driving at the same point in the line are evidently expected by the British to achieve a similar result. This time, however, the ground which would have to be abandoned would be far more valuable to the Entente and its loss a correspondingly heavy blow to the Germans for the German-held Belgium coast line with its submarine and aerial bases is at stake, together with the great French manufacturing city of Lille and wide stretches of territory in north France.Today's attack followed sharply the last despairing effort of the Germans to stay it off.The French fighting front has been comparatively calm except for intense artillery activity northeast of Verdun.BRITISH LEADER WOULD RELUCTANTLY MAKE REPRISALSLONDON, Oct. 4.—In an address today at luncheon to presidents of the Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom, Lieutenant General Smuts, former commander of the expedition against German East Africa, said that any "defeat on the battlefield"COMMANDER OF ARMY mander of Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va.

the Panama Canal zone.and balked in the submarine campaign is now, in impotent rage, more and more striking at us through our non-combatants, through our women and children." Aerial warfare against the defenseless was the new weapon, he said, and predicted it would not only fail but would prove to be a terrible boomerang."Applying the principle of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," General Smuts said, "we are most reluctantly forced to apply to the enemy, the boomerang policy which he has applied to us."CONGRESS EAGER TO TRY DEVICE THAT MAY REVOLUTIONIZE WARAmerican Inventor to Get Hearing Before Scientists, H. Dill Passes.By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The House bill providing for tests of a mysterious machine for utilizing free energy devised by Garabed T. K. Giragosian, an Armenian inventor from Boston, went to the Senate today and Congressmen, enthusiastic over war possibilities of the machine, planned a drive for immediate action.Giragosian so impressed five members of the House patents committee at a secret demonstration that they recommended passage of the bill to provide for a demonstration before a board of five scientists and the secretary of the interior as a preliminary to the government buying the right to use the device.

WOMEN PRISONERS RIOT

Silent Sentinels Serving Time Rush Workhouse Keepers.WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Seventeen silent sentinels of the Women's party doing time in the Occoquan workhouse for picketing the White House, are bruised and scratched today, as a result of a free-for-all scuffle late yesterday, when the authorities removed one of their number to the hospital without giving notice of her detention and the other pickets formed a flying wedge to rescue their comrade.During the melee, it is said, some 60 negro women also prisoners at the workhouse, came to the rescue of the keepers and details of the battle as it was waged vary. The pickup has resulted in new charges being laid by the pickets against the conduct of the workhouse. One account of the melee is that it verged on being a race riot.

Railroaders Nabbed.

Pat Kennedy, a Baltimore & Ohio engineer, and two other railroad employees, were arrested this morning by Captain E. F. Ludwig of the railroad police, on a charge of larceny and burglary. They are alleged to have broken into a box car in the yards and stolen some clothing. Informations will be made against them before Alderman Fred Munk.

No Trains Running.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4.—Employees of the government railroads joined the striking railroad men tonight. The strike is now general and no trains are operating in the republic.

BOTH SIDES REMAIN FIRM

Company Officials Claim Work is Going On Without Interruption; Men Say Those Who Took Their Places "Merely Sitting in Their Chairs."The railroad clerks at Cumberland and Keyser walked out last night at 6 o'clock in a sympathy strike with the clerks of the Connellsville division, who quit work yesterday because the company refused to restore Edward Cochran to his position in the superintendent's office with full pay for time lost.The Cumberland walkout is the feature of today's developments in the strike situation. The sympathetic walkout indicates that there is a possibility of a widespread strike of railroad clerks, in an effort to force recognition of their new union.At Cumberland, everyone seems to be in doubt as to why the men are striking. "Both men and women have quit, and that is all we know about it," General Superintendent F. E.
Blaser said last night. Members of the clerks' organization were reticent when asked why the strike had been called. There is little doubt, however, that the strike is a direct result of conditions in Connellsville. G. W.
Easty, representative of the national clerks' association, who is in charge here, said that the Cumberland men were striking to force the company to accede to just demands and to restore Mr. Cochran to his position here, from which he is supposed to have been discharged on account of his activity in organizing the union.Five members of the organization were let out at Cumberland several weeks ago but were later reinstated.
There are already 150 out at Cumberland, these including 20 women and 75 out at Keyser.At Cumberland reports were current that Glenwood, Grafton, and Brunswick clerks will go out tonight.
Here no statement was made as to which places were expected to produce the next walkouts, but the union men were sure that the walkout would extend to various places along the Baltimore & Ohio line.This morning that there was nothing new on the strike, with the exception of the walkout at Cumberland. There had been no walkouts at other points along the road as yet, he said, but the strike would gradually extend farther and farther if the company refused to accede to the clerks' demands."All the clerks want is a square deal," he said, "and they are determined to get it."A report was received at the clerks' headquarters in the Macabee building yesterday that the men at Glenwood had gone out. This later proved to be untrue.The clerks' hold no meetings last night or today, but checked in at headquarters this morning. They were confident that they would come out on top at the end of the strike."As far as we can learn," Mr.
Easty said, "the company is in a bad way here. They may have a few trained experts sitting in the office chairs, but they are certainly not familiar with the work. The officials, assistant superintendents and yard-masters are throwing switches and acting like bullheads. The freight trainmen, I understand, are not moving as regularly as they should."Exactly how many men are out here cannot be learned. The clerks themselves are not sure, because of the confusing shifts in which many of the men have been working. The number is estimated at probably 175 and certainly more than 150.OFFICIALS SAY WORK IS DONE BETTER THAN USUALAt the Baltimore & Ohio offices today everything was reported to be running smoothly, and W. O. Schoon-over, chief clerk to the superintendent, said that the work in the division ac-countant's office was being done better by the experts than by the regular clerk. Five of the old clerks are still at work.J. E. Wallace, car distributor, said this morning that a record was made in shipping trains west yesterday. He said 17 trains left the yards in nine hours, breaking any record ever made by the regular force. With the call boys and the chief caller out, the trainmaster took the place of the caller, and taxicabs were utilized. When a crew was needed quickly the men were hauled to the yards in a muchine.Many applications are being made by persons for the clerical positions. Mr.
Schoonover said this morning, "None has yet been filled, but they will be if the boys don't come back," he said.
Mr. Schoonover said the company wanted to give the employees a chance to return before filling their places.Get Street Sentences.

AND JUDGES HAVE SOME TIME DETERMINING PRIZE WINNERSFollowing an inspection yesterday afternoon of gardens grown by girls entered in the garden contest conducted by the Woman's Suffrage Party, prizes were awarded as follows: First, $3.00, Miss Anna Sample; second, $2.00, The Camp Fire Girls; third, $1.00, Misses Mary and Maillida Beal. At the beginning of the garden season the suffrage workers of the city distributed a number of tomato and cabbage plants among the girls who desired to take up gardening.
Hoping to create a greater interest among the girl gardeners three prizes were offered.Owing to the lateness of the season the gardens did not make as good a showing as a month or so ago. Luck was against two of the girls. Poor weather prevented the garden of Miss Gladys Albright from yielding any crop, while bugs totally destroyed plants planted by Miss Anna Grace Lohr of York avenue. The garden of Miss Anna Sample yielded enough tomatoes to supply the family for table use and also for canning. There was also a nice crop of cabbage and several messes of corn. The Camp Fire Girls' garden near the South Side school building yielded a small quantity of cabbage, beans and potatoes.
Misses Maillida and Mary Beal raised several messes of beans and corn and 10 or 12 heads of cabbage.The Camp Fire girls are Misses Katharine Brendel, Dorothy and Elizabeth McClaren, Florence Louder, Sarah Porter, Nana Hood, Ora Enos, Martha Kauffman, Hester McCasas and Ruth Higbee. Miss Margaret Whitman is guardian.The judges were P. R. Weiner, W.

EIGHT YEARS AGO WEDDED TO ANOTHER WOMAN HEREMrs. Olga Garrity of Pittsburgh Wants to Be Paid For Rearing Family of Four.

HUSBAND A MILL FOREMAN

After vainly searching for her husband, Richard Garrity, for eight years, Mrs. Olga Garrity of Pittsburgh, finally located him yesterday living in West Apple street, and married to another woman. He was placed under arrest on a charge of bigamy, preferred before Alderman Munk.
Garrity is a foreman over the rolls at the Silgo mills, and has been here four months. According to his wife, she lived here with him 11 years ago when he was a ruffian on the rolls at Silgo. Garrity is said to earn as high as $15 a day, holding an important job in the mill.According to Mrs. Garrity, her husband was in Pittsburgh last week visiting some friends. He told of giving his wife $50 every two weeks, and this news reached the first Mrs.
Garrity. Learning that he was working in Connellsville, she secured a warrant for his arrest and came here, accompanied by her sister.Yesterday she followed a man she took for her husband from Silgo to a house in Peach street. Then, accompanied by Constable Charles Wilson and Patrolman Turner, she went to the house. The man was not Richard Garrity, but Mrs. Garrity recognized him as an old acquaintance, who told her where her husband was living.The three immediately went to the Apple street residence and found Mr.
Garrity and his second wife there.
The scene enacted at this time was like a moving picture drama. No one moved for a moment. Then the first Mrs. Garrity said:
"That's my husband."The man tried to speak but his words seemed to stop in his throat.
Finally he asked, as though he could not believe his own eyes:
"Is that you Olga?""You know it is, Dick," was the answer."That's news to me," broke in Mrs.
Garrity No. 2.At the police station this morning Mrs. Garrity No. 1 told of the hardships she had gone through in order to raise her family of four children.
The oldest, a daughter, is married now, but three are still at home. She said her husband left her nine years ago, since which time she had been unable to locate him. She said that Mrs. Garrity No. 2 claims to have been married to Richard Garrity at Jersey City seven years ago. He and his second wife have lived at different places since then, coming here when the Silgo mill reopened."I want to be well paid for raising my four children," said Mrs. Garrity this morning, "but she can have him.
I wonder if he ever beats her and swears at her like he used to do with me?" Mrs. Garrity laughed when she related what her husband had told a former acquaintance he met here recently, when the latter inquired after his wife:"Oh, she is as big as ever, and her hair is all white," Mrs. Garrity reported to have said, moaning his second wife.It seemed a joke to the first Mrs.
Garrity, who is slender and dark, with rather nice features.At the hearing this morning, Mrs.
Garrity agreed to withdraw both charges, provided he would pay $1-000. The settlement has not yet been made, but Garrity signified his willingness to pay the money in installments. He will also get a divorce.

ELLARD FIRE DAMAGE
WILL BE ONLY $400Family Contents That Entire Structure and Furnishings Are Ruined.Although the owner of the house contends that it will have to be completely remodeled, Fire Chief DeBolt claims that the fire loss at the Ellard fire on Tuesday night was not more than $400.Incidentally, the chief explained just what "fire loss" is. His report to the city and state fire marshal gives an estimate of the actual damage done by the flames. The total damage by smoke and water may be many times that amount. The insurance companies, however, base their adjustment on the actual loss sustained.When told that the fire chief estimated the loss at $400, Mrs. J. S.
Ellard was horrified. "Why our house is ruined," she declared.
"It is wrecked from top to bottom.
Walls, paper, carpet, bedding, furniture, even our catcases are soaked through and through. We hardly have a place left to lay our heads.
It would not have been so bad if they had not poured water over the whole place. As it is, we don't know where to turn our heads. Anyone who looks the place over will readily realize the great damage that was done."Fire Chief W. E. DeBolt also states that the fire in the Ellard home was not caused by electric wires. He made a complete investigation yesterday and found that the wires were not near the place where the fire started. The accusation was burst off them during the course of the fire, however, and the lights in the house extinguished.Chief DeBolt attributes the fire to rubbish in the attic store room where the blaze started. In that room there was a small round burn on the floor, as if a wastebasket had been consumed. From here the fire leaped to some two-by-fours supporting the roof, the wall being unfinished on the store room side, and spread to the Gilbert apartment.

NEGRO KILLED

Colored Man Who Attacked Five White Women Is Shot.By Associated Press.
ST LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Edward Wilson, a negro who, in the last week, attacked five white women in revenge for the death of relatives, killed in the riots in East St. Louis, July 2, was shot and killed on the streets last night by Joseph Cipollit, the result of a girl he insulted last Sunday night.Cipollit, with the aid of two friends and the police, had a car for the negro and entered him into an automobile. He became suspicious when the men drove toward the police station and jumped from the car. Cipollit drew a revolver and shot the negro five times as he ran.

Fire Water.Fire water consumed in unlimited quantities at a wedding celebration joined in by a band of Seminole Indians and a roving Gypsy band, in camp between Fayette City and Bellevue, is said to have been the cause of a free-for-all fight in which one Indian was seriously injured. Seventeen men were placed under arrest by County Detective John J. Smith and four state policemen. They were locked up in the Bellevue jail.The injured Indian, who had suffered a fractured skull, was given medical treatment in Bellevue.

WILL SEND HIS PET HOME

Pomeranian Pup, Worth $100, To Be Entrusted to Care of Charles Crowley of Connellsville as There Is No Place for Him in Camp NotesBy SCOTT LYSINGER.
Tenth Regiment Hospital Corps, CAMP HANCOCK, Monday, Oct. 1.A very interesting and educational trip was taken by several members of the Hospital Corps to the First Field Bakery and other points of interest about the camp this afternoon.The invitation to visit the bakery was given by Edward Crossland, a former Connellsville boy, now connected with the bakery, who took us through the plant and explained everything.
Crossland has been with the Field Bakery for almost three years and since the time of his enlistment has advanced rapidly and become an expert baker. He is now a sergeant, with good prospects of being promoted to the position of chief of section, a much coveted post among the bakers. Crossland's company was connected with General Funston's brigade while on the border.Crossland has in his possession a valuable pedigree Pomeranian pup, he having bought it while in Philadelphia and carried it South with him.
This dog was well thought of in Philadelphia and he has refused several offers of handsome sums for his pet.
He also has a possum and a rabbit which he captured in camp. "Rowdy" as the dog is called, will be shipped to Charles Crowley of Connellsville this week, it being impossible to keep him any longer in camp.The Field Bakery plays a very important part in this Army camp, the whole division depending on it for its bread. One man alone can turn out as high as 3,500 pounds of bread daily. A few pies and doughnuts are allowed. These attract many visitors to the bakery. In the Field Bakery there are two other Connellsville boys, William Truby and Sherman Rosen, the latter being connected with the electrical end.A serious fire was narrowly averted this afternoon by the prompt and efficient work of several members of Company H, Tenth Regiment, when a blaze was discovered near the peak of the tent in a clothes rack, which had been erected and suspended from the center pole. The blaze rapidly spread to the canvas above it and the entire tent was soon ablaze.
Nearly all the clothes on the racks were damaged besides some personal belongings. Continued on Page Five.

brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Littman of Uniontown. Kurtz Littman yesterday received orders to report to

FUNDS FOR BERNSTORFF

Money in New York Banks at His Disposal Used to Pay Bolo Fasha.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Evidence indicating that German funds held by New York banks for the Deutsche bank of Berlin and which were employed to pay Bolo Fasha, German spy and peace propagandist, were placed at the disposal of Count Von Bernstorff by wireless messages from the German foreign office, was obtained today by State's Attorney General Merton E. Lewis.

This evidence conclusively proves, according to the attorney general, that Count Von Bernstorff had a direct hand in directing the activities of Bolo Fasha, who is now under arrest in Paris. It was obtained, he said, from Hugo Schmidt, agent there of the Deutsche bank, whom he examined today.

Subpoenaed to appear before the attorney general today, Schmidt produced the text of eight wireless telegrams in code exchanged between him and the German foreign office in March and April, 1915, while Bolo was in this country. The messages, authorized Schmidt to place at the disposal of Count Von Bernstorff more than a million and a half dollars in the Guaranty Trust company to the account of the Deutsche bank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The investigation of Attorney General Merton E. Lewis into the activities here of Bolo Fasha, under arrest in France as a spy and peace propagandist, disclosed today that William Randolph Hearst, the newspaper publisher, attended a dinner given in this city by Bolo in March, 1917, according to the attorney general.

There were present at this dinner, Mr. Lewis told newspaper men, Adolf Padenstedt, who figured as an intermediary for the transfer of German funds into New York banks to be sent to Paris for peace propaganda among French newspapers; Captains Boy-ed and Von Popen, naval and military attaches of the German embassy, and Gules Bois, a French lecturer, who it was revealed, received money from Bolo Fasha.

Some time prior to this dinner, Mr. Lewis said, Mr. Hearst had entertained Bolo at the editor's home. It was explained by the attorney general that the relations with Bolo were purely social as far as he was aware.

TWO HOT SCRAPS
Girls Fight Over a Hero Man; Youth Mix It Up Hard.

Two interesting fights were staged in different sections of the city last night, about the same time. While two youths were mixing it up near the Macabre building for the decoration of quite a crowd, two girls were going at it hammer and tongs on Green street. Each was a finish fight.

The young ladies' unpleasantness was perhaps the most interesting. Instead of hair-pulling and scratching they stood up and exchanged punches in the most approved fashion. It was fast and furious, if not very scientific. Finally one of the combatants let out a snarl, which signified that she had had enough. The scrap was induced by one lady taking the other's follow.

LAKE ORE AND COAL DECREASE

In Movement to and from Interior Points, One Interfering With the Other.

Showing a decrease of 100,000 tons or 97 per cent over the previous week, 1,016,590 tons of ore were moved the week ended September 23 from Lake Erie ports to interior furnaces, says the Cleveland Daily Iron Trade.

For the same week a total of 1,000,721 tons of coal were delivered to boats at those ports. The tonnage of coal loaded was a decrease of 38,540, or 7.5 per cent over the previous week.

This is taken to indicate that the effect of the priority order intended to stimulate the movement of lake ore, seemingly has disappeared or was offset as the result of price fixing and the overloading of lines reaching the ports of Toledo and Sandusky, O., resulting in embargoes being declared and a halting of shipments. Moreover, the railroads report labor conditions are unsatisfactory.

Up to September 23, there had been loaded 18,479,367 tons out of a total of 23,000,000 tons of coal to be delivered to the boats this year, leaving 10,520,633 tons to be loaded in the 10 weeks remaining after the date mentioned. Since the opening of navigation, 21,199,331 tons of ore have been moved out of 30,000,000 tons, which is estimated must be shipped in a car before the navigation season ends. This left $300,000 tons to be moved during the 10 weeks remaining. Dependence had been placed upon an increase of lake coal shipments to take care of the ore, but unless improvement is made in this respect, it will be necessary to transport empty cars to lake ports, a difficult and expensive operation under present congested conditions.

Difficulty met in moving cars has resulted in a decrease in the car supply both at the mines and the coke and a number of the furnaces of the United States Steel Corporation are backed or out of blast for want of coke.

GRACEFULNESS AND VELVET MARK HATS.

Honors are even between graceful lines and velvet—they hold first place and reign together in the realm of millinery for this season. First of all a hat must be graceful at may be large or small, soft or straight, brimmed, high-crowned or not, but its lines must be alluring. A dearth of trimming was forgiven in early models and almost forgotten—we were so carried away by the beauty of fur lines.

Velvet, plain and panne, came in with the first hats of the new season and will remain until winter is gone. Flowers are beginning to blossom on them as the time for the snow to fly draws near. Fur, in bands, with flowers or ribbon ornaments, has settled itself for a definite residence on hats for midwinter. Two favorites, among many beautiful shapes, are shown here, one of them harboring three ribbon roses and the other rejoicing in a ribbon sash and a band of fur.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it comes in so naturally so evenly. You just rub it on a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs are disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

DOUBTFUL POINTS IN COKE PRICE PLAN TO BE CLEARED SOON

Price of Foundry, Stock, High Sulphur and "Off" Grades Yet to Be Fixed.

BROKERS' COMMISSION

Not Yet Provided For; Some Withdraw From the Market; Chairman Railway of Coke Committee Urges Operators to Strict Adherence to Regulations.

There is every assurance that the doubtful points involved in the application of the "fixed" price of coke to trade conditions will be cleared up very shortly. The official announcement of last week was designed only to give notice to both producers and consumers of the maximum price which it is lawful to ask or to pay and left to later consideration by the Fuel Administration the arrangement of details whereby the new regulation can be made applicable.

The general impression in the trade being that the price of $5 applies only to furnace coke there remains lack of information as to the price to be paid for foundry and stock coke and also as to what deviation from the standard price is to be allowed for high, low and medium sulphur cokes, light or heavy ash content and other qualities by which the trade has classified the different grades and the product of the different coke producing fields.

No provision has yet been made for the commission to be allowed brokers or by whom it is to be paid. The view is held generally, by both producers and consumers, that the producer should pay the commission, the understanding being that the government intended $5.00 to be the flat price to consumers f. o. b. cars at ovens, without other addition than freight charges to point of consumption. On account of the uncertainty in the present situation it is understood that a number of coke brokers have withdrawn from the market pending the working out of details necessary to apply the government price. The formation of a brokers' association is said to be contemplated.

In his formal announcement to the coke trade of the United States of the fixing of the price of coke Roy A. Rutney, chairman of the Coke Committee of the National Defense, has made the following statement, urging the fullest cooperation by coke producers and their strict adherence to the regulatory plans of the government:

"The price of furnace coke fixed by the President, viz: $5.00 per net ton, basis Connellsville, after conference with the War Industries Board, while not as high as the operators may feel entitled to receive, is nevertheless a price sufficiently high under present conditions to stimulate the industry by removing the uncertainty heretofore existing in connection with governmental price fixing. The fair and broad minded attitude shown by the President and the War Industries Board in dealing with this question is an assurance that the coke operator need now have no fear of governmental action detrimental to the industry and undoubtedly every effort will be made not only to maintain, but if possible to increase coke production in order to do our part in accomplishing the speedy and successful termination of the war.

"All coke which has been selling on the spot market at prices more than double that fixed by the President, must now be available at the new price in order to maintain the present rate of steel production, and the government expects you to give your hearty co-operation in every possible manner to accomplish this object.

"It is, of course, understood that the President's order prohibits sales of either spot furnace coke or new contracts for furnace coke at over $5.00 per net ton, Connellsville, on and after September 24, 1917, and too much stress cannot be laid on the advisability of strictly adhering to the spirit of governmental action.

"The coke industry may rest assured that its efforts to co-operate with the government in maintaining and increasing production will receive due recognition in case further readjustments are deemed necessary."

OVER ONE THOUSAND

The West Penn Railways Company has received more than one thousand subscriptions for its 6% Cumulative preferred stock—in amounts ranging from one to twenty shares. The number of subscriptions has shown a steady increase during the past two weeks, which has been highly gratifying to the management.

Besides, these subscriptions have all come from people in the territory served by the West Penn System. This reflects not only an appreciation of the properties as an operating proposition, but confidence in the ability of the Company to expand its business and to earn a satisfactory return therefrom.

An increase of more than one thousand stockholders in a few weeks is a record of which any company might well be proud. Moreover, the West Penn Railways Company believes that the ownership by its patrons of a large interest in the business will be of permanent benefit to the company and its stockholders.

West Penn Railways Preferred Stock (par value $100) is being offered to patrons of the System at $82 per share. The net return at this price is 7.32% per annum. Taxation, on account of the war, is an important factor to be considered in making investments. West Penn Railways Preferred is free of the Pennsylvania state tax of four mills and income received therefrom in dividends is free of the normal Federal income tax of 4%.

Dividends, amounting to 6% per annum, are payable 1 1/4% quarterly on the fifteenth days of March, June, September and December. Stock purchased now will carry the dividend accrued since September first, which will be paid on December fifteenth. Earnings of the Company applicable to dividends on West Penn Railways Preferred, are more than three times the amount required to pay the dividend. Our patrons are fully aware that the System operates in the greatest industrial district in the world and that demand for light, power and transportation is constantly increasing. A circular, giving detailed information about the Preferred stock, may be obtained at any West Penn office or will be mailed upon application to the

OFFICERS' LIFE NICE BUT OH SO VERY EXPENSIVE

They Have to Buy Their Own Equipment Which Costs Considerable.

SETS THEM BACK A BIT

Three Pairs of Shoes, $30; Uniform, Three Pairs of Pants, $30; Hat, $5 to $8; Tailored Serge and Tailored Wool Uniform, $80 and Lots More.

There are lots of nice things in favor of being a commissioned army officer these days—things that most any civilian knows and can appreciate to a certain extent. Natty clothes, leadership, social standing.

But what is the cost, asks the man of meagre means and a good chance of attending one of the officers' training camps. There's the rub—the cost.
Officers, unlike private, must purchase their own uniforms and outfit.
If you would give ear to some of the men fresh from the officers' training camps, who have, by decree of the fate, not been blessed with an over abundance of money, it is to wonder at their expense.

An officer's equipment clothing and belongings list is as long as the proverbial milkman's day. It costs in proportion to length. You take their word for it. Here's a sample of the purchase list of a young officer who got a good grade of whatever he bought—nothing very cheap—nothing very fine:

Three pairs of shoes, $30; leather puttees, $10; spiral wrap puttees, $5.50; cotton khaki uniform, three pairs breeches, two blouses, $38; hat, $5 to $8; hat cord, $1.50; raincoat, $7.50; wool socks (12 pair) $6; underwear at any price from $2 a pair up; pajamas, three; olive drab shirts, $5 each; cap, $4; tailored serge and tailored wool uniform, $80; overcoat, $10 up; extra pair breeches, $15; Lee trench boots, $12 to $15; toilet kit, $1.50 up; sweater, $3.50; bedding kit, $12; mattress, $8; blankets (two), $5; trunk, $7 to $12; "housewife" of needles, thread, etc. $3 to $4; revolver, $25; holster, $5; belt, $4.50; magnifying glass, $1.50; two extra magazines, $2.50; army canteen, $20; field glasses, anywhere from $20 to more than $100; folding cot, $2.50.

That represents an outlay of between 400 and $500 and does not include haversack, mess' cans, condiment can, bacon can, knife, fork, spoon, pack carrier, canteen, cup first aid pouch and many other incidentals.
Nor does it include the probable cost of the uniform when it changes as made in officers' uniforms, which is not infrequent.

Soldiers of the new National Army are learning a great many new things these days. Sewing is becoming a regular part of each day's duties, not from requirement by official military orders, but from necessity. Patching and darning goes with the other needlework.

So the selective draft men are becoming efficient "housewives." Many have "housewife" outfits which include a very important part of the soldier's kit—his pocketbook. It consists of needle and thread, a pair of scissors and various sizes for various parts of the uniform, and other little necessities to keep his clothes neat and his stockings darned.

And last but not least, each man must know how to "make up" his own bed and how to keep his particular part of the barracks building or bunk hall in proper order.

After arriving in the barracks there is a certain period of "make up" for creating up. The straw bed ticks and blankets on each bunk must be dubbed back from the feet of the cot just so. Hand soap or handkerchiefs belonging to the soldier must be piled just so, and everything else he has of a personal nature must have its place. This includes writing materials, books, papers and magazines.
It is a breach of the rules to leave things scattered about.

Should the recruit spill a bit of coffee or drop a bit of bread or spread the sugar bowl on the long mess table it is his duty to repair the wrong.
There are no waiters or lackeys, no maids or servants of any sort to help the individuals in the military camp.
Each fellow is responsible for his own well being, his own personal appearance and his own welfare.

Officers say there is one sure way to find if the private is a company or in a regiment are created in their work. That is to find if they talk drilling, discuss their work among themselves, or if they study what they are working at day by day—if they are taking more than a passing interest in their new life.

Dealers in books and military supplies vouch for the information that the demand for drill manuals is wonderful. Hundreds of the enlisted men are trying to buy the booklets at 50 and 75 cents each. Some indeed what they have been practicing on what they are going to practice in the days to come. At the barracks anyone can find little groups of men talking about the various orders they have been following and even some they have anticipated. And they are reading war stories and incidents. Magazines with good "front thrills" yarns and newspapers that put are prizes.

There is no question about the men being interested in what they are doing. They do not finish the day's manual labor and forget about it.
They are living it, breathing it, thinking and talking it, and even dreaming it. The life of the soldier in the majority is a big adventure, one would think, and they are making the best of it. There are exceptions but they are decreasing in number every day.

The rank and file is taking to this new life like they enjoy it. And most of them are getting more fun and satisfaction from it than from anything they ever tried before.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Oct. 4.—Last night about 12:30, George Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Henderson, found smoke in the house and awakened his parents who found that the house was on fire. The fire started in the cellar and must have come from a defective chimney, the heater or defective wiring. The fire alarm was sent in and the firemen quickly responded and put up a good fight but could not keep the fire from ruining all of the furniture and the inside of the house. The Henderson home is on College avenue. The entire household furnishings and the woodwork, floors, etc., are a total loss.

ENGINEERS' CENSUS IS COMPLETED

The Bureau of Mines Finishes Its Mobilization of Technical Men of The United States.

The Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, at the request of the Council of National Defense, has just completed a census of mining engineers, metallurgists, and chemists.
With the list that 7,500 men engaged in mining and 15,000 men engaged in various chemical industries have been classified according to the character of work in which each engaged, and the results of the classification are being used in various branches of chemistry and mining.
But includes as well a classified list of men who have had experience in foreign countries. It is not the purpose of this census to enable the bureau to act as a clearing house for technical men in obtaining commercial positions.

Van H. Manning, director of the Bureau of Mines, explains that "the war engineers play a far greater role than ever before. The products of the mines, furnaces, factories and chemical plants are being so rapidly consumed that the highest possible skill is required to keep pace with the destruction everywhere apparent in the organization of a great army, many classes of specialists are needed, and the problem is to get the best qualified men for each place."

The work of conducting the census was carried out in co-operation with the American Institute of Mining Engineers and the American Chemical society.

A circular letter was addressed to approximately 5,000 members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers and 5,000 members of the American Chemical society. This letter requested that each recipient fill out and return a card accompanying the letter, and make himself a committee of one to see that every chemist and engineer of his acquaintance likewise filled out a card. The number of replies received by the bureau was approximately 7,500 men engaged in the mining industry and 15,000 in the chemical industry.

As the Bureau of Mines wishes to keep its lists up to date, the registered engineers and chemists are requested to advise the Bureau of Mines of any change of address.

Price-Fixing Closes W. Va. Mines.

Iron is the Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Powers of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous, Run-down People 100 Per Cent Stronger in Two Weeks Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. E.
Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied widely both in this country and in Great Britain Medical institutions when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring. Colic, stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by lack of iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks.
Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Time proved I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were along all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from 10 to 14 days' time.

simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or lactate of iron simply to move a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like Nuxated Iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because they knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the arena, while many another has gone down to humiliating defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. E. Sauer, is one of the nearest organic iron compounds known. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not irritate the stomach, on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy. In nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $1000 to any charitable institution if it cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent of yourself in four weeks' time. They have no serious organic trouble. They down people who were along all the while, double their strength and en-
symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other
troubles in from 10 to 14 days' time.

THREE CITY BOYS IN FIELD BAKERY AT CAMP HANCOCK

This was the first real fire that we have seen in camp. Five cents have been plenty and more than once have the boys been cooking out of heat in the middle of the night to answer alarms, most of which have been at the opposite end of the camp.

The express question has so far been a hard one to handle, a delivery system not having been established.
Packages have been coming in rapidly.
Most of them arrive in good time but owing to the unsettled state of affairs are not being delivered as rapidly as they should. The large sled that has been erected by the Southern Express company has already been found to be too small and an additional one is being ordered. All expressions for Camp Hancock are transferred in Augusta to freight cars and hauled to Waynes, Ga., the nearest station to the camp, and if the packages are perishable and have travelled any distance it is more or less damaged by the time it is delivered to the individual. For this reason it is advisable to pack all perishable goods carefully, or better still, not to send anything that can not stand handling.

BEST SEASON AS BIG LEAGUE PITCHER

EDDIE CICOTTE, WHITE SOX STAR TWIRLER.

Eddie Cicotte, premier pitcher of the Chicago White Sox, is thirty-three years old, having been born on June 19, 1884, at Detroit. It has been through his effectiveness as a twirler that President Charles Comiskey owes his success this year more than to any other player on the Chicago team.

Rival clubs have howled long and persistently about Cicotte's pitching this season. They have charged him with everything they could think of in the line of unfair tactics on the mound, but up to date no one has been able to prove that he has employed illegal methods. Cicotte's work on the rubber has been the outstanding feature of the defense of the Chicago club this season.

A scribbling sharp in New York sought to interview Roger Hornsby of the Cardinals on his opinions condo you like best? That is, what do you think you play best?

"Don't see any difference," said Hornsby. "If they hit a ball where you can get it, then you got to get it and hustle it to some base. Or if you're playing first, you got to get the throws they give you if you can. If you don't, you're no good."

"How do you account for your success in the big leagues?" was the next thing asked of Hornsby.

"Count for it? Say, how do the rest of 'em count for it? They just do the best they can, don't they? Well, that's what I do."

The newspaper reporter retired with the opinion that Hornsby is a most extraordinary young man.

POPULAR SPORTS IN MEXICO

Many Amateur Baseball and Soccer Football Teams in Mexico City—Play at All Times.

That amateur sport is flourishing in the Mexican capital is shown by the fact that there are 102 organized amateur baseball clubs in Mexico City and its suburbs and 60 soccer football teams.

The season for all varieties of sport in Mexico lasts 12 months a year, as the climate permits play at all times. Even during the rainy season the mornings are almost always clear and sunny, and the nature of the soil and the high dry atmosphere make delay on account of wet grounds almost unknown.

No regular league series are played by the baseball clubs, but short series between three or more selected teams are arranged for month to month. The games usually are played on Sunday morning or on feast days and holidays, and, as a general thing, no admission is charged.

Many of the larger athletic clubs and colleges and professional schools have three or four teams each, the first teams drafting players from the lesser teams as they are developed.

But all this only serves as a background for principals who are artists and comedians who are genuinely funny. Jack Pungary, the leading comedian, fairly convulsed the audience with laughter in his supreme moments,

The DEEP SEA PERIL

by VICTOR ROUSSEAU

© BY W. G. CHAFFIN

"We'll have to try her at a mile, Clouts," said Donald to the lookout.

He carried only three torpedoes. He would have liked to close in and make sure of his prey, but a shot at almost the extreme range seemed preferable to hazarding the vessel and the lives of his crew.

"Aye, sir!" answered Sam Clouts.

Clouts was a man of about forty years, hook-nosed, with bland, humorous blue eyes, and a square jaw under a square, bristling beard. When off duty he was perpetually playing a mouth-organ, and Donald could not help smiling to see his hand stealing covetously toward his pocket even now.

The German could hardly have been more than a mile away when she suddenly changed her course to westward. Donald had been approaching her head on, with the object of maneuvering, when within striking distance, to send a torpedo amidships. The new course of the vessel was a bitter disappointment to him.

Donald realized that she was nearing the Shetlands and endeavoring to make the passage between mainland and Fair Island. That was the most hazardous part of her journey. Once beyond the straits, she would be free in the open Atlantic.

He gave the order to rise. The tanks were blown, the rudders and diving planes adjusted; the F55 began to mount upward. A green translucency appeared. The electric lights went out. The hatches were opened. A gust of fresh air drove the stale atmosphere away. The petrol motors took up the task of the electric ones. Donald ordered full speed. The vessel drove high through the waves, achieving 12 knots.

A shadow edged the misty horizon. It was Sunburgh head, the extreme southerly point of the Shetlands. Here the cruiser was due to turn.

"Smoke to port, sir!" said Clouts.

The German had evidently seen it at the same time, for her speed began to diminish. This meant that she was steering cautiously to gain the shelter of Sunburgh, behind which she might be unobserved for observation.

If it was an English battle cruiser that was approaching, the ship would be hard put to it to escape. It was not likely that the oncoming ship had sighted her smoke through the increasing haze.

Donald drove hard for the main channel. He knew that he could catch the German now, and he was ready to take chances of discovery. Meanwhile, inch by inch, the stranger came up out of the sea.

At first Donald believed she was a British battle cruiser. This hope was soon dispelled, however, when her funnels showed three black smoke, and with white, the color of the Claude line, and the heavy hull, built for freight, not speed.

His heart began to thump heavily. For the Beotia was one of the Claude line's ships, and the approaching vessel looked very much like the overdue Beotia.

And Ida was aboard her, and already well within range of the enemy's guns! The two ships had sighted each other. Donald saw the Beotia diminish to a thread line as she turned and ran, prow on, toward the Orkneys. A spurt of flame broke from the German's bow. A coil of cloud followed it. A few seconds later the boom of the discharge echoed across the water, and a pillar of spray shot up near the Beotia's bow. The battleship turned toward her prey.

And Donald's chance had come. The Beotia had no intention of surrendering. The German, following her, perceived the lurking danger, and at once his guns were trained on the submarine.

The F55 dipped at the bow. A shell hoisted over her, and a second, falling shorter, dinged the submersible with water. But the F55 was stern down and sinking. Her periscopes shot through the waves, the only target, and in the conning tower Donald sat with his eyes fast on the mirror.

Two feet below the surface the F55 plunged on toward the monarch of the sea.

The sound of the guns was vastly louder under the waves. A single shot, sent home, would smash through the thin plates as if they were of paper. But Donald knew that it was the supreme moment when danger must be ignored. He seemed to sense the ship, the crew, as a single entity, devoted to a single purpose. He aimed his bow directly into his enemy's right flank. He was less than a mile away. At that distance it seemed a miracle that her shells failed to strike home.

Down in the torpedo room three men bore a torpedo from the rack and placed it in the tubes. They swung it forward into the breach of the tube. One man at the pump rapidly filled the breach chamber with the compressed air that was to send the missile upon its course.

Donald, in the conning tower, still held the cruiser within the mirror. He saw the smoke coil from her guns, he heard their dull reverberations, and knew that at any moment the blinded F55 might be sent staggering to her death through the wake of her wash. But he was animated by the single-minded purpose which inspired all and made the steel and human mechanism a bolt forged for death.

Clouts, at the wheel, did not allow the little craft to deviate a hair's breadth from her course.

"Stand by!"

The hiss of the oxygen apparatus dominated all other sounds. At her 45-knot speed the missile left the launching tube with a heavy thud, and the ship quivered as she shook herself free.

And Donald knew that his shot had gone home.

The whir grew less, but all listened until the end of the mile-long journey. On board the enemy ship everyone could see the air bubbles that came up from the speeding missile and its white, foaming wake. There was no time to maneuver the giant ship. They prayed—they could do no more—that the torpedo might not have been shot freely that it might deviate from its imminent path.

It came on inexorably. The firing became whiter. The gunners, absorbed as they were in their task, seemed permeated with the convulsive terror caused by that white, rippling pencil line that was extending toward their ship.

The missile struck the battle cruiser amidships, blowing out a section of her hull, a single water-tight compartment. The cruiser hardly staggered, from the blow.

The torpedo had struck glancing, and missed the full force of its delivery. The wound was in itself too small to sink or even badly cripple the great ship; a triumph of shipbuilding, and calculated to withstand just such an impact.

Unfortunately for her, the maximum of the shock was received beneath the powder room, adjacent to the ammunition chamber, whose doors were open at that moment for the removal of the 12-inch shells by the ammunition hoist.

The shock was followed by an infinite suspense. Perhaps it lasted for two seconds. The cruiser drove through the waves like some sea monster that had received a deadly thrust unscathed.

Then, with a detonation that was heard from Sunburgh to Sutherland, she went sky-high in tumbling ruin. Donald, within the conning tower, saw a blur flash the mirror of the periscope.

Another second passed. Then the F55 went reeling under the terrific force of the explosion. She spun round under the waves and thrilled as if she herself faced disintegration.

The bilge-pumps cleared her diving tubes. She rose, nose upward, scattering the air; her stern followed, and she lay awash in the water once more. The hatches were removed.

Not a vestige of the cruiser was to be seen. She had sunk in less than three minutes.

But hard by, not three-quarters of a mile to port, a pillar of smoke, lit up by flame, curled out of the Beotia's hatches. Deeming her the submarine's decoy, the cruiser's gunners had riddled her with shells from the two 12-inch guns at the bow.

She seemed to stagger through the smoke that wreathed her. She was dying by fire and water, too, and the twin elements, in their eternal conflict, reeked nothing of her human freight.

And Ida was there—Ida, doomed to perish, if she were not already dead, unless help speedily came!

Donald took the helm. The F55 rushed through the waves in the direction of the Claude liner, which listed hard to starboard. Two boats had already been launched, and bobbed ridiculously beside her; others remained high up in the air, impotent, because the list prevented their being lowered, and dashed themselves to pieces against the hull as they swung from the shattered davits.

As the F55 drew near the ocean seemed to open. Silently, softly, the convexity of the hull slipped down and was lost to view as the sun's edge rose into the horizon. A swirl and eddy in the sea, and nothing remained except the two boats and some tiny, doll-like figures that bobbed in the water.

A gasp of horror went up from the throats of the seamen, clustered upon the deck of the F55, as the swirl sucked down the boat that was the nearest to the waterline of the wreck. It sucked down with all its living freight, and spewed it forth into the air again, and on—empty.

The engines stopped. The submarine glided in. The single boat seemed empty. Not! There was a woman aboard, and a man pulling wildly upon one oar.

Donald took in the situation instantly. He turned to his aid, Davies, a little, keen-faced middy who was making his first voyage to command of men.

"Now us, or run for Fair Island!" he cried. Then, flinging off his coat, he leaped.

A few strokes carried him to the whirling boat. And now he realized that he had known all along that the girl in it was Ida, miraculously saved out of the great company of those who had died. His heart beat a peen of joy; at the sight of her his love awakened, and he knew that this was no transient passion, but an enduring one. But just as he reached the boat he saw the sailor at the bar stagger blindly toward the edge. It seemed as if he were being dragged overboard against his will. He whirled his arms and plunged into the deep with a hoarse cry that rang out far above the waters.

CHAPTER V.

The Sea of Jelly.

He sank like a stone. No glimpse of him could be had. No rescue was possible.

Donald clung to the edge of the boat and scrambled in. He saw the amazed recognition flame out on Ida's face. He knew then that she loved him, and his impulse to seize her in his arms was almost ungovernable.

But at the same instant, looking past her into the sea, he experienced the same illusion that had beset him within the house in Hollidown, and again outside it—that of a woman's misty form outlined upon the water!

Donald made a cup of his hands.

"Davies, fling out a rope!" he bawled.

But the submarine was some distance away, and in a moment a veil of fog came down, blotting her out.

Ida Kennedy watched Donald with approval. She had always liked him; shaken as she was now, his advent seemed the work of Providence. She had questioned her heart before she sailed, for she had known that her future was of her own choosing, whether it was to be spent with him or no.

Donald continued to call loudly, but the F55 was drifting in the mist and quite invisible. It was in fear of this sudden happening that Donald had told Davies to make for Fair Island if he could not get a rope to the boat.

Fair Island, less than six miles away, was the secret rendezvous where the oil-ship and biplane were to await the F55, the former to replenish her fuel supply, the latter to accompany her back to the mother ship.

Donald picked up a pair of oars from the bottom. He realized that he would have to pull toward Fair Island alone as soon as he got an inkling of its direction, with the chance of being picked up by the submarine when the fog cleared. But it was approaching sundown, and the probabilities of their spending the night in the boat seemed strong.

He sat with the oars in the rowlocks. As he allowed one to drift through the water he discovered, to his surprise, that it was apparently plunged into a mass of some jellylike substance. He dipped his hand into it and scooped some of it up.

The water was apparently curdled, like thickened milk, and on both sides of the boat, which rolled in it heavily and high in the viscous medium.

As he withdrew the oar Donald had the sensation of pulling it from between the clinging fingers of a child.

He looked down. It occurred to him that he might have got the blade entangled in some marine growth; but the water was clear, almost black, and of the same strange, jellylike consistency everywhere.

Then, to his amazement, he realized that the boat was moving!

It was not like the pull of a towline, which is a sequence of crescendo and diminuendo, of starts and jerks, as the rope grows tight and slack alternately. It was a constant impulse. It was an intelligent impulse.

It was beginning to grow dark, and to row seemed useless until the fog dispersed. It was impossible to gauge the direction. Besides, to pull against that force would have been arduous, and to pull with it might have led to unexpected difficulties.

Donald lacked water in experiment. Instantly he felt the force increase. It was an effortless, persistent push, stronger than his own powers, and Donald realized that he could not resist it.

Suddenly he felt a stinging sensation on the back of his hand. He pulled in the oar. Five small, red spots had sprung out on his wrist, and the flesh seemed to have been cupped.

Donald clasped his other hand down on it, and encountered something clammy and cool, which seemed to slip away. It was like the flipper of a little eel, or, again, like the hand of a child or monkey.

At the same instant Ida screamed. Donald saw that she seemed to be struggling with some invisible adversary. The boat was tipping dangerously. Donald flung his weight over, and he heard the thud of a soft body against the bottom.

The thing—whatever it was—was in the boat!

Donald leaped forward and clasped Ida about the waist. She writhed in the clutch of the monster, and there was a look of intense horror upon her face. She seemed to be lifted bodily toward the water. Donald felt the slippery fingers of the invisible being clutch his grasp. His hands moved up and down over a smooth, blueberry body.

And then he knew what it was. It was such a creature as he had seen in the glass tank in Masterman's house, but larger and more powerful.

He saw the rays deflecting from the creature's body, dancing in pulsant colors upon the edge of its leathery hide. He saw it, directly, as one sees the full moon in the arms of the cow.

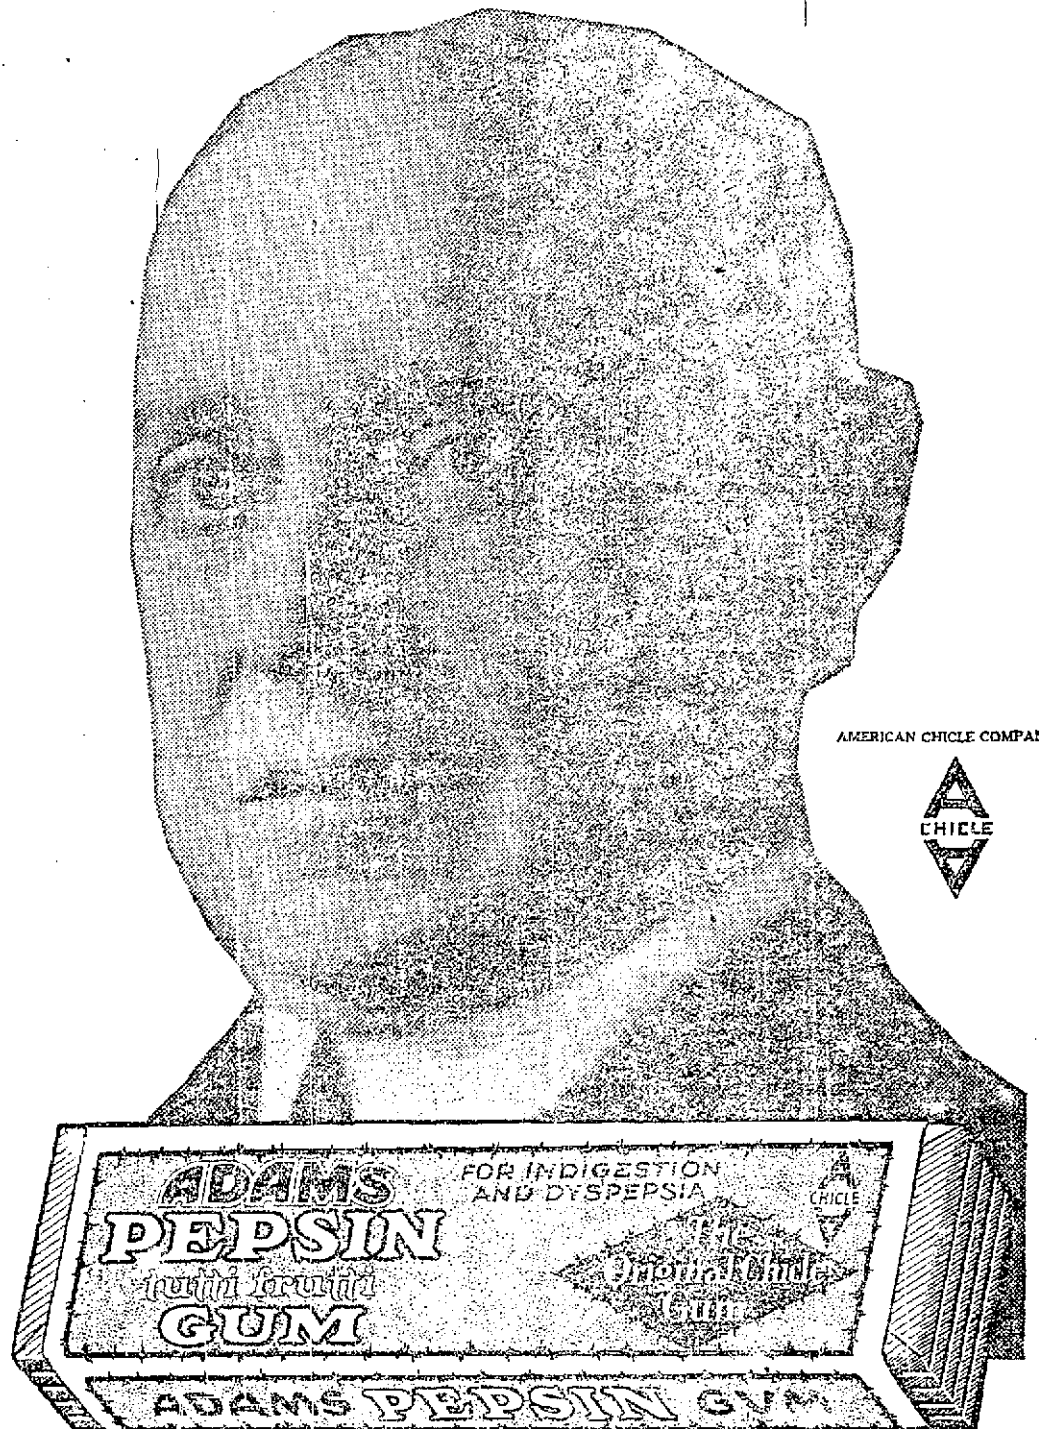

And gazing into its eyes, were the two eyes, seemingly poised in the air, two pupils of the size of currants, and animated by a diabolical intelligence.

The sun dipped down, and in an instant the fog, only partly dispersed, closed in again. And as Donald watched, he saw the pupils slowly dilate in the dim light until they became as large as saucers. The strong glare between the unwhiskered lids, which fringed them like a shadow, the monstrous expansion of the pupils sent the blood through Donald's heart in icy jets.

Then, regaining courage, he dashed his fist into the monster's face, and the struggle began. He felt the impact of his knuckles on flesh, and it gave him new heart. At least he was fighting a thing of flesh and blood, and not a demon.

Then, regaining courage, he dashed his fist into the monster's face, and the struggle began. He felt the impact of his knuckles on flesh, and it gave him new heart. At least he was fighting a thing of flesh and blood, and not a demon.

He stumbled and fell. He felt his Ida lay swooning across the seat, when the monster had dropped her as it turned to face its new adversary. And in the rocking boat Donald fought for his own life and that of the girl he loved.

For the first time he understood that Masterman's story was not the dream of a disordered brain, but the experience of one who had striven to warn a skeptical world.

And afterward he understood why the boat had spun so dizzily long after the vortex created by the sinking of the Beotia had subsided. Even then the swarm of monsters must have discovered their prey.

Perhaps it was the plankton in the water, the jellylike infusion on which they fed, that had brought them there; perhaps the presence of drowning men. Perhaps they had brought the plankton with them, equipped for some dreadful journey.

Donald tried to lock his arms about the slimy thing, but he could get no firm grasp of it. And each touch of the slippery drew the blood to the surface of his skin by suction, bringing out rows of reddening spots that stung. He was fighting a devil fish with the intelligence of a man, armed with invisibility, creating overwhelming horror by its presence alone.

He felt his strength falling him. He was dragged toward the edge of the rocking boat.

He stumbled and fell. He felt his self held fast; he felt his ribs were compressed in a strapping vise.

But as he felt his hand grasped one of the oars. Donald snatched it up and, with a last effort of desperation, freed himself for an instant. He released the oar and sent the sharp edge of the blade crashing forward.

He heard the sound as of a torn balloon. The squirming fingers uncoiled. The boat tipped to the edge and righted itself. A splash followed. Donald sank down upon the seat.

Then gradually a milky cloud began to diffuse itself upon the face of the waters, till it acquired the shape of a heartlike body, supine upon the waves, with the short limbs, terminating in the webbed hands, bunched at obtuse angles to the trunk.

Donald sprang toward him, to shield her from the sight of it. He knew that if she awoke and looked she would go mad. But she lay unconscious as the seat and did not stir.

The boat stopped. There was a confused splashing in the water. The dead sea-beast was rent asunder under Donald's horrified eyes; torn limb from limb by that abominable swarm. A mottled, pinkish lurid spread itself upon the face of the sea.

Donald plunged in his oars and began to pull with all his might, driving the heavy boat through the water. The plankton gave place to clean ocean water again. The sun had set, and it was as his, organizing them for one supreme purpose, the elemental one of food.

growing dark; with the fall of night a gentle wind came up that began to dissipate the fog.

Through the drifting mist wafts appeared a faint glow that seemed itself toward the squashed clouds. Donald pulled for an hour. Then he felt forward over his oars. He was incapable of another stroke, but he believed that he had left the sea devils behind.

He cast his eyes along the horizon. There was no sign of the F55. He turned toward Ida.

As he bent over her her eyes opened. She looked at him intently and sighed. The horrors of that day seemed temporarily to have benumbed her mind and robbed her of memory. And Donald did what he had never dared to do before.

He raised her in his arms and kissed her.

"I love you, dear," he said. "If we come out of this—us—well—I want you always. Will you have me, Ida?"

She raised her lips to his for a moment, which stood for all that they had endured. Donald perceived that the boat had begun to move again.

The results had been of brief duration. He raised her in his arms and kissed her. He placed her in the bottom of the boat, her head against a thwart. They were moving swiftly.

They were swimming beside the boat. Donald could see the agitated churning of the water. Were they pushing or pulling? Taking the oar in his hand, Donald went to the bow and dove it down into the sea. But he struck only the jellylike medium in which the boat was traveling.

He went to the stern, stepping over the body of the girl, who had relapsed into unconsciousness. This time, as he thrust, there was a scurry among the waves, and he felt the shifting, bubbly form, and the same sensation of a lower balloon. The boat stopped. Donald thrust out furiously, feeling always the contact with slippery flesh.

The monsters were pushing the boat, not pulling it.

And gradually these followed the same stupendous invagination into visible being, the shadowy shape that grew and crystallized into the milky, opalescent body. He heard the school precipitate themselves upon their prey, and saw it rent and dismembered before his eyes.

Through the increasing darkness their pupils glared as the monsters strove together.

Donald went back to where Ida lay and placed her in the bottom of the boat, her head against a thwart. They were moving swiftly.

He placed her in the bottom of the boat, her head against a thwart. They were moving swiftly.

C. H. S. HELD TO SCORE OF 12-0 BY DUNBAR TOWNSHIP

Leisnering Boys Give Local First Team a Hard Tussle.

O'LAUGHLIN PROVES DANGEROUS

Visitors' Big Back Proves Troublesome to Connellsville; Contest is Interesting, Though Result is Never in Doubt; Many Forwards Tried.

Showing unexpected strength, the Dunbar township high school eleven held the Connellsville high school boys to the score of 12-0 in a midweek game at Fayette Field yesterday afternoon. O'Laughlin, a big Dunbar back, tore holes in the local line for a time, but the Connellsville boys braced up and their goal was never in real danger.

Connellsville used the game as a fine chance for practicing the forward pass, in which they are still weak, and several new formations, and had they stuck to a straight plunging game, the score would have been larger. All in all, however, the Leisnering boys showed real class, and earned the right to be chased as a dangerous team and a worthy foe in the future.

Connellsville tried out a slightly different combination, with Weisberger at quarter and Lyon at one of the halves. The team play was slightly faster than on last Saturday, when the Homestead game was played, but the boys are still a trifle slow.

Thomas proved to be the big ground gainer with Lyon also making several good runs and one particularly good tackle. Moore advanced the ball successfully with off tackle runs and plunges.

The first score came in the first quarter, when Lyon took the ball across on a wide end run of more than 20 yards. A costly fumble by Moore in the second quarter cost Connects a score. The South Connellsville boy made up for this miscue in the third period, however, when he recovered brilliantly on a Dunbar fumble. Thomas made several long gains in the last period and finally took the ball over on a 10 yard dash around Dunbar's right end. Both goal kicks failed, Loughrey attempting one and Thomas the other.

Perella had O'Laughlin's number, and he pulled the Dunbar star down regularly toward the end of the game. Dunbar held Connellsville for downs twice. The Leisnering boys need a little tutelage in tackling, however, for they show an unfortunate tendency to grab a runner just as high as they can go.

The Connellsville team has two more workouts before Saturday when they go to Scottsdale for a hard game. Yesterday's lineup:

CIVILLE	DUNBAR TWP.
Carson	left tackle	Kearney
Durrell	left guard	Jones
McGormick	center	Connor
McConnell	right guard	Scourfield
Perella	right tackle	Randolph
Loughrey	right end	Oldfield
Weisberger	quarterback	Moore
Lyon	left half	Bates
Moore	right half	Stoner
Thomas	fullback	O'Laughlin

SCORE.

Dunbar Twp.....0 0 0 0-0 Substitutions—Connellsville, Buttermore for McConnell.
Scoring—Touchdowns, Lyon and Thomas.
